

[illegible]

A process for making a front panel of a scoreboard by computer generating a layout and color scheme incorporating lettering and graphics and digitally printing the layout directly onto a front panel made of vinyl, or other appropriate material. The front panel is then appropriately secured to the body of a scoreboard. This method allows the user to easily add a custom look to a generic scoreboard in a one-step process.

[illegible][illegible][illegible]